

UNIT-5

Body Language

Learning Outcomes

By the end of this unit the learner will be able to:

- ✓ Learn what non-verbal messages tell others
- ✓ Understand how to read visual cues more effectively
- ✓ Control their own body language to strengthen their communication with others

Unit 5

Body Language

What Do Our Bodies Say?

In significant (though often misinterpreted) research, Albert Mehrabian found that when it came to discussing emotions, only 7% of the speaker's message was communicated by words, and that tone of voice was responsible for about 38% of the meaning and body language about 55%. This means that the words themselves played only a very small part in conveying meaning. In other conversations (not the ones about emotions), we know that tone of voice and body language have a large impact on those messages, too.

We are always sending signals to others, whether we like it or not. Body language combined with vocal tone can override or even cancel the meaning of the words we say. If you want your messages understood, make sure your words and your body are sending congruent signals.

Here are some things to keep in mind about body language:

- Ñ Your eyes, eyebrows, and mouth send out the signals that can make a world of difference.
- Ñ People who smile are happier than those who don't. Smiling releases a chemical in your brain that makes you feel good. It's a great way to establish a rapport with listeners.
- Ñ Eye contact helps you carry your message to each person in the audience. It builds trust.
- Ñ Learn to speak with your hands. Draw lines in the air, make a point, count on your fingers, and emphasize length and width.
- Ñ Work on appearing sincere and comfortable.
- Ñ Let your hands do what they want to do, as long as they don't get in your pockets, fiddle with an object, or make obscene gestures to your audience.
- Ñ Your body posture affects your emotions and how you feel determines your posture. If you are confident, happy and ready, your body will show it.

One of the most important things you can do with body language is learn how to recognize cues from people that indicate you are making them uncomfortable. Ask yourself if you are doing what you can to make the other person comfortable. Do you fidget, chew gum, click a pen, or check your watch frequently? Are there other things that you do? If so, what message do you think you are sending?

If your conversation partner is doing any of these things while you talk, what could be going on?

- Ñ Rocking
- Ñ Leg swinging
- Ñ Tapping

These are the first signals of tension and indicate that the person feels intruded upon or nervous. If it escalates, these signals are often followed by:

- Ñ Intermittent closing of the eyes
- Ñ Slight tucking of the chin into the chest
- Ñ Shoulder hunching

If you sensitize yourself to these simple cues, over time, people will have the experience of feeling more relaxed, at ease, and open with you (and to you).

Basically, learn to watch for signals, and then adjust your approach. Sometimes just taking one step back, or ceasing talking and getting the other person to talk to you instead, will be all it takes to ease the tension.

The Signals People Send

The chart below can be used as a guide to help you with some of the signals that people send.

| Non-Verbal Communication | Interpretation |
|---------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| Facial Expressions | |
| Frown | Displeasure, unhappiness |
| Smile | Friendliness, happiness |
| Raised eyebrows | Disbelief, amazement |
| Narrowed eyes | Anger |
| Blushing | Embarrassment |
| Eye Contact | |
| Glancing | Lack of interest |
| Steady | Active listening, interest, seduction |
| Hand/Arm Gestures | |
| Pointing finger | Authority, displeasure, lecturing |

| Non-Verbal Communication | Interpretation |
|--------------------------------------|--|
| Folded arms | Not open to change, preparing to speak |
| Arms at side | Open to suggestions, relaxed |
| Hands uplifted outward | Disbelief, puzzlement, uncertainty |
| Body Postures | |
| Fidgeting, doodling | Boredom |
| Hands on hips | Anger, defensiveness |
| Shrugging shoulders | Indifference |
| Squared stance or shoulders | Problem-solving, concern, listening |
| Biting lip, shifting, jingling money | Nervousness |
| Sitting on edge of chair | Listening, great concern |
| Slouching in chair | Boredom, lack of interest |
| Clothing | |
| Business dress | Authoritative, conservative |
| Sloppy attire | Disrespect, lack of responsibility |
| Casual clothes | Relaxation |

| Voice Characteristics | |
| Speaking loudly, quickly, and with clipped enunciation | Anger |
| Monotone and downward inflection | Boredom |
| High pitch, fast rate, loud volume, and upward inflection | Joy |
| Status Symbols | |
| Rare or expensive possessions | High status |
| Prestigious titles | High status |

Gestures

We all interpret body language differently, and we can also feel differently about images. We are influenced by past experiences, background, culture, and so on. Our feelings may be colored by our mood, or by memories associated with these images, so we cannot assume that others will interpret our body language correctly.

A gesture is a type of non-verbal communication that is communicated through body language, with or without speech. Gestures can be a challenging part of communication. If you travel around the world or work with people from different cultures, you need to be aware of the multiple meanings to some gestures. While finger pointing is tolerated in some societies, it is a serious insult in others. While putting your feet up on a coffee table is a sign of relaxation at home, it can be very offensive to your guests if the bottoms of your feet are directed at someone.
