Search Engine Optimization (SEO)

What is SEO?

No matter how popular your company is, or how unique your name is, people still have to be able to find you online. Search Engine Optimization (SEO) needs to be one of the tools you use in order to help you gain and maintain a digital reach that is both broad and deep. When you optimize your web pages, social media sites, blog, and wherever else you have an online presence, SEO helps you to get as close as you can to the top of search results – preferably to the top of the first page.

In order to get to the top of a search page, you need to select search terms and keywords that people look for, and then optimize your content to make it easy to find, or “search friendly.”

Your best SEO results come from having great content on your sites. This will also help you attract people who are interested in what you have to offer; the qualified prospect. Throughout our conversations about SEO, it’s important to remember that nothing is effective unless you offer good, strong content. Unless you appeal to visitors to your site, they don’t become qualified prospects and convert to customers.

Understanding Search

When it comes to getting found on the Internet, there are plenty of different tools that get used. We’re fortunate that a shared language has developed around them.

Spiders, Crawlers, Bots (or Robots)

These are automated processes that search engines use to visit all your sites and index what they find there.

Natural and Organic Searches

These are the lists of unpaid advertising sites that are generated after you do a keyword search. They are the result of the search engine’s algorithm (a set of mathematical rules). They are different than a non-organic result (which may include paid advertising). In the example below, we searched for “how to paint furniture” and we got about 115,000,000 results. They are all natural or organic, because there are no paid ads on the page.

How It Works

Search engines use tools like spiders, crawlers, or bots to trawl the Internet for new information. They are working all the time! Remember, though, that they may work on a different schedule than you do, so you need to prompt them to come look at what is new on your site by sending them a message.

You can update a search engine like Google, Bing, or Yahoo by using their webmaster tools and submitting the URL of the new or updated page. You have to submit to each search engine separately, and they don't like it if you are sending them all the same link.

Instead, you can choose to update one site and wait for the spiders from the other sites to find your new content, or you can stagger things. For example, you could send one site the updates for your hub site, another your blog updates, and the third an update to your social networking page. As you can already tell, this could get to be a big job, so you might find this easier if you use something called pinging.

Pinging is a process where you can advise the search engines that a change has been made. You can start pinging with a third-party service, or you can set up your website, blog, and so on to do it automatically. For example, large blogging sites such as WordPress, Blogger, or TypePad have pinging built in to their service already. For other sites, you simply have to submit the URL of the page you updated, the name of the page or title of your article or information, and then click Submit. The service you are using will respond by broadcasting a message that your URL has been updated.

The Search Engines

Once you get started with SEO, you will probably start getting sales e-mails from companies that want you to pay them a prince's ransom to get your site submitted to hundreds or even thousands of search engines. In reality, though, if you get ranked on the top sites, you will be captured in about 94% of all searches. As of Dec'2021 74.09% global Internet searches were done using Google, followed by Yahoo at 1.80%, and then Bing at 11.70%. (<http://marketshare.hitslink.com/search-engine-market-share.aspx>)

When you enter a search term, the search engine tries to offer you specialized results based on your past searches and what it gauges as your preferences. If you do a lot of research about fast cars, for example, that history also contributes to your results. Are you a researcher? If so, you'll see recent search topics in your results, too.

Let's look at how the three top search engines responded to a query for "marketing online."

Alternative Search

Portals, directories, resources, multimedia, and social networking sites all offer search functions, and your consumers are using them. We use search functions on sites like eBay, Kijiji, Squidoo, Amazon, and others to look for almost any kind of product. According to researchers at Comscore (<http://www.comscore.com>), we used all of them more in 2011 than we did in 2010, and the reliance on these alternative sources is growing.

Although these searches may not be what we would think when we think of search engines, people are using them, so you must be monitoring them, too. What does this mean for you as a company embarking on Internet marketing? You must be found by people who may not even know they are looking for you.

us that longer search queries tend to lead to more conversions (sales), possibly because the searcher already knows exactly what they want.

Search engines ignore certain words, so you can leave them off your phrases. (You can leave them in so they make sense to you, but just know that search engines ignore them.) This includes prepositions (about, beside, of, than, under, etc.), conjunctions (for, and, but, yet, etc.), articles (a, an, the, etc.), and punctuation.

To keep your keyword list reasonable, words that have the same root when in plural form can be entered as a singular word. You would use the words dog, skunk, or car but you don't have to use dogs, skunks, or cars. However, knives, mice, and companies will need both versions of the root added as a keyword, because they change from knife, mouse, and company.

Metatags

When the programmer (or you if you are a do it yourselfer) create your webpages, there will be a space for a metatag where you can list and track your keywords. These metatags are not required for the search engines, but they do help you to keep track of your keywords. Visitors to your webpage don't see the metatags either, but they do appear in your coding. A good strategy is to vary where you position search terms on different pages because the search engines truncate the keyword tags at different lengths.

Monitoring Search Engine Ranking

Understanding Rankings

Now that you've invested all this time and effort on search engine optimization, you need to collect, analyze, and make adjustments to maintain your ranking at the top of the results list. Good rankings come from having popular pages, and popular pages come from having great content and lots of traffic (visitors) to your site.

A search engine algorithm ranks your pages from 1 to 10. Right now if you were to visit Google's page, they rank as a 10, but if your page ranks at least a five, you will probably reach the first page of search results (although there are no guarantees). In order to monitor your page ranking, you can download the Google toolbar and then enable it for your browser (or you can just use Google's Chrome browser). (As of this writing, the link was <http://google.com/toolbar>. We take no responsibility for the accuracy or content of this link, and does not endorse this plugin.) Then you can use the page rank tool to rate any page that you like by following the directions.

If you want to maintain a decent ranking, you must commit to checking your rankings regularly and to adjusting your content. Remember that your webpages must be visible and easy to locate if people doing searches are going to find you.

Improving Traffic

If you measure your rankings and find that you are not getting enough traffic, here are some suggestions.

Improve your inbound links (also called backlinks) by making sure that your links appear in places that your customers visit. (Your blog and social networking sites may allow this. You can also ask to have your links placed on other sites with complementary products and a shared target market.)

Check and see what kind of traffic your competition is getting. You can get help for this with specialized sites such as www.alexacom.com or www.quantcast.com or through an Internet marketing specialist. (These links were accurate as of the time of publication. We take no responsibility for the accuracy or content of these sites and does not endorse the sites mentioned.)

Know who and where your target market is. Links to your site from other related sites will help direct qualified traffic to your web site. Get to know site owners and work with them to increase traffic to your mutual benefit.

Improve your page ranking. Make sure your page(s) score five or higher on the Google PageRank tool. Highly ranked pages help with your own visibility and help increase your traffic volume.
